Third International Meeting ISMI

International Standard Manuscript Identifiers

Third International Meeting

For the identification and interoperability of manuscripts

Since April 2017, a discussion has been underway to establish a unique identifier for manuscripts. Two meetings dedicated to the project have already taken place (Manuscript IDs: for a unique identifier for manuscripts 2, Paris, May 3, 2018 ; Manuscript IDs - Manuscript identifiers, Paris, April 26-27, 2017), as well as a symposium during which a number of aspects of the project were discussed (CENSUS: identify and describe manuscripts by language and country, Paris, 12-13 October 2017). These meetings brought together representatives from many conservation institutions and research centres.

A interest in this issue has emerged, both in research centres and in conservation institutions. An international working group was set up in May 2018 to define better the scope of such an identifier, to specify how it could be implemented and to produce a draft international standard (ISO).

The third ISMI meeting will be hosted by Ca' Foscari University in Venice on 15 and 16 November 2018. In addition to being an occasion to present the project in Italy, this meeting will aim to move the collective discussion forward, building on the experience of the participants and the scholarly and broader public reaction to the project over the past few months. After the presentation of several Italian electronic initiatives related to manuscripts, the rest of the afternoon will be devoted to the discussion of practical cases, with particular attention to complex situations (fragments, scattered manuscripts, manuscript movements, etc.) and how to integrate them into ISMI. The morning of 16 November will be devoted to a closed meeting of the ISMI Working Group, which has already been established.
